NASPA LEAD INITIATIVE

On Civic Learning and Democratic Engagement (Lead Initiative), developed in 2012 following the release of A Crucible Moment: College Learning & Democracy's Future, comprises a network of NASPA member colleges and universities committed to encouraging and highlighting the work of student affairs in making civic learning and democratic engagement a part of every student's college education.

Covering two- and four-year public and private institutions, with diverse student profiles and varying enrollments ranging from large public flagship universities to small religiously affiliated private colleges, the NASPA Lead Initiative institutions reflect the diversity of the U.S. higher education landscape.

ELECTION IMPERATIVES 2020

A Time of Physical Distancing and Social Action

<https://idhe.tufts.edu/sites/default/files/EI2020.pdf>

For Presidents/Chancellors and other Senior Leaders

Presidents and chancellors can provide essential leadership in establishing priorities, setting a tone, and advocating for action on and off campus. Reflect on what role you want to play: activist, cheerleader, messenger, community organizer, convener... You don't need to run everything, of course, but you need to play a visible role by reminding the campus community of the importance of political learning and electoral engagement.

1 DEFEND DEMOCRACY AND ACADEMIC FREEDOM.

How we adapt to this year's election conditions will be a reflection on the state of U.S. democracy. Colleges and universities have the academic freedom to examine and draw attention to the threats facing democracy around racial injustice, structural inequality, unequal opportunities to vote, underrepresentation of historically marginalized groups in our political system, and other equity matters. Institutional leaders need to frame electoral engagement around democratic principles and practices to set the tone, expectations, and goals. Be ready and willing to defend faculty who talk politics.

2 READ YOUR NSLVE REPORT(S) for turnout gaps and top-line rates. Check your registration and yield (the percent of registered students who voted) rates. For example, if 75% of your eligible student voters registered and only 55% of those who were registered turned out (what we call the yield rate), then only 41% of your students voted. Aim higher this year. Look at age, class-level, demographic groups, and fields of study. Flag turnout gaps and address them. Remember that NSLVE reports flag gaps, but only by working with students and understanding your institutional context will you understand what's behind them.

3 NURTURE STUDENT ACTIVISM AND STUDENT VOICE.

the student experience over the previous months through open forums, surveys, and peer-to-peer conversations. What has changed for them? What are they most concerned about, and what role (if any) can the institution play in helping advance educationally centered and equitable goals? Education and discussion will be better received than regulation, so consider an online series of conversations (not lectures or info sessions) that invite student perspectives on their health and safety during the pandemic.

4 IDENTIFY OR RECONSTITUTE A SMALL CIRCLE OF ADVISORS.

Building on the Election Imperatives (EI) Recommendations 1 and 4, select 4–6 colleagues and students to form a small working group that will coordinate a larger, permanent coalition responsible for year-round, continuous efforts. Include someone with positional authority in academic affairs or with a high level of trust among faculty. Address public issues and include advisors with experience in racial equity and intergroup community building, as well as an expert in online teaching and/or communications.

5 REBOOT OR RECRUIT A COALITION, as suggested in EI Recommendation 4, that is truly inclusive in terms of members' roles, tenure on campus, social identity, lived experience, political ideology, and the constituents they reach. Involve groups

WHERE WILL YOUNG VOTERS IMPACT THE 2020 ELECTIONS?

Top 10 States/Districts by Youth Electoral Significance

Parties and other political groups often overlook the votes and energy of young people even where youth can have a decisive influence on the outcome of the race. CIRCLE is providing data-driven insights about the states and congressional districts where youth are poised to have a disproportionately high electoral impact in 2020.

PRESIDENTIAL RACE	SENATE RACES	HOUSE RACES
1 WISCONSIN	Youth Electoral Significance Score 2.35	SUMMARY North Carolina ranks highly in large part because it is projected to be one of the most competitive states in the 2020 presidential election and the state had high youth turnout rates in the last two presidential elections. In addition, there's been a big difference in the vote choice of the state's youth and that of older voters: In 2016 youth preferred Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton by more than 20 points even as Republican Donald Trump won a narrow victory overall by less than 4 percentage points, and in 2012 North Carolina youth supported Barack Obama by a remarkable 35 percentage points even as Mitt Romney won the state by less than 3 percentage points. Youth also have high potential for electoral influence
